

Conflict, Faith, and Community

CRS-2262-001 | Fall 2019 | MonWedFri | 10:30-11:20am | Dr. John Derksen

What do religion, faith, and community have to do with conflict and peacemaking? To what extent is religion or faith the cause of conflict or how can they contribute to a more peaceful world?

In this course, you will explore how faith and community contribute to violence and how they may offer resources for peace. You explore our own faith and community traditions, and the traditions of major world religions. Guest speakers share about peace and reconciliation from Indigenous, Hindu, Jewish, and Muslim perspectives. Students enjoy a lot of discussion and often build meaningful relationships through this course.

Requisite Courses: CRS-1200 or permission of the instructor.
